To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing this reference at the request of Cameron Perret, who is continuing to seek new opportunities for his professional career. I have known Cameron for 1 year as his direct manager. In that time, he has only exceeded expectations for his role and years of experience. He regularly demonstrates a capacity to learn quickly, take initiative, and own his tasks to completion while working within a team.

Cameron has learned quickly both the requirements of operating a production government financial system and nuances of the technical architecture. He has also shown an ability to work well within and across teams to accelerate his learning and assist other members. In the past several months, he has worked with integrations developer to set up and run a custom utility to invoke attachment retrieval and posting services in combination with SQL to review and resolve issues. During this effort, he coordinated within the team and brought both status updates along with ideas for overcoming challenges until the issue was resolved.

In another instance, I was able to explain to him my concept for a solution to provide more direct reporting results with our users. With very basic direction, he researched and determined the details to action on the design, tested the individual steps, and implemented a solution that can continue be expanded upon. In addition to those technical steps, he engaged directly with our business contacts to have the solution leveraged to maximum effect.

In conclusion, I would highly recommend Cameron. If his performance in the time that I've known him is an accurate representation of his future, Cameron will be a loss to my organization and a significant benefit to yours.
